Republicans of Kentucky Meet In Louisville This Afternoon and Tonight In Their State Convention -Big Meet Certain.

Louisville, Ky., March 3. - Republican leaders from all sections of Kentucky began arriving in Louisville last night to get an "early line" on the program to be put through at the state convention to be conducted in Phoenix Hall this afternoon and tonight. The convention will be called to order by Ed T. Franks, of Owensboro, Chairman of the State Central Committee.

At the Second District convention in Henderson yesterday Franks was denied indorsement for a place on the State Central Committee, a post of honor he has occupied in the party for many years. Objection to Franks, it is said, was due to his advocacy of the claim of former Governor A. E. Willson, who is seeking the Republican nomination for the United States Senatorship. The state organization is said to look with favor upon the aspirations of Richard P. Ernst, of Covington, in connection with the nomina-

Disenssion of Water Situation Tues day Evening Lasted For More Than Three Hours But Nothing Is Done.

The court house was filled with local citizens Tuesday evening called there by the Mayor to hear represntatives of the State Board of Health and to discuss generaly the local water situation. Although there was much discussion of the question, there was nothing accomplished except that an expression on three propositions was obtained from the audience.

Captain C. N. Harrub, detailed by the U.S. Public Health Service to the Kentucky State Board of Health, described the results of his investigation of the local water situation and ecommended that nothing but a sand filtration system would give to Maysville a safe and satisfactory, water The Captain then answered various questions and various local citizens expressed their views on the situation. seemed to be the opinion of all that a filtration system for Maysville was o be desired but some though that this was not the time for the building

KENTUCKY WOMEN TO VOTE IN NOVEMBER

Republican Leaders Promise That Bill Will Be Passed Permitting Women To Vote For President.

Frankfort, Ky., March 3. - The request of one branch of the Kentucky woman suffrage organization for the submission of a suffrage amendment to the state constitution has been denled by the State Log! Lure, but Kentucky women will vote at the November elections of this year.

Republican leaders have given positive assurance that before the end of the session the bill granting women the right to vote in presidential elections will be pased. It was introduced in the House by Representative Joseph Lazarus, the Republican floor leader and in the upper house by Senator Hiram Brock, the spokesman for the administration in that body.

The fall elections will see women of Kentucky attain the goal for which they have worked for many years and only one thing remains to guarantee them the rights of suffrage in full and without question. MOVEMENT OF LIBRARY ASSOCIATION APPROVED

"Books For Excrebed;" Plan of Amerlean Library Associat'on Approved By Claxton.

Washington, D. C., Mar. 3 - Hearty commendation of the "Books for Everybody!" movement of the American Library Association in its enlarged program is contained in a statement by P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education, Department of the Interior. The project of extending opportunities for public self-instruction by providing greater library facilities thorughout the United States appeals to Commissioner Claxton as one of the most effective agencies to promote the highest type of citizenship. He declared that he was especially interested in the establishment of the county library system on a far broader plane, one of the main features of the Association's program.

'The public library," said Commissioner Claxton, "is one of our most effective agencies for public education-possibly the most effective of all for older boys and girls and for tdult men and women. No people may hope to become broadly educated and cultured who do not read. Only when good collections of the best books are Wrshin easy reach of al lthe people may we how that most of them will read as they should.

"I am delighted to know that the plans of the association include the preparation of reading and study and particularly study courses in American citizenship. These will be very helpful at this time, when the people of the country are interested as never before in what has come to be called Americanization.

'But I am most interested in the plans for the establishment of county libraries. What few of the people who live in the open country and in villages and small towns have access to any adequate collection of books. In more than two-thirds of all the counties in the United States there is no library with as many as five thousand volumes. It is, however, just these people of the small town, village and the open country who have the most time for general reading and who would use good libraries to best advantage."

Three escheated estates of tories. two from Fayette and one from Jefferson county, formed the first financial support of Transylvania College back in 1783, when it was Transylvania Seminary. Washington, Aaron Burr, LaFayette and John Jacob Astor I, were among the first who gave to its endowment.

James Lane Allen, whose "Choir Invisible" and other books have been read by hundreds of thousands of Americans, and John Fox, Jr., whose "Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" and "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" gave the world a true conception of life in the Kentucky mountains; both were graduates of Transylvania College.
